

Doing the MBA at Milpark Business School changed my business outlook and structured my thinking on all the functional aspects of business.

Graduating with the MBA is more than just an academic achievement; it broadened my ability to function successfully in the boardroom, collaborate with my peers and to lead my team. It is commonly known among my peers that I am an HR person with the ability to be broadly business relevant. I could only achieve this with the insights I acquired as a result of the MBA programme.

With so many organisations now going global, and so many collaborations performed internationally, individuals need to gear themselves for a global employment market that will seek for professionals with the right business insights. The Milpark Business School MBA can prepare anyone for this new landscape.
